Sunday Readings

First Reading: (Isaiah 55:6-9) Chapter 55 brings Second Isaiah to a close. Written as the Exile of God's people into Babylon was about to end, it is filled with hopeful passages that read like lyrics of a hymn. Since the temple has not yet been rebuilt, the first part of this reading reminds the believer that God may be called upon at any time and in any place. The Divine Presence is not confined to the temple. The God who transcends creation and perhaps seemed far from the people in exile is ever near to believers.

Second Reading: (Philippians 1:20-24, 27) In this letter Paul's own personality shines forth and his own inner thoughts are revealed. Responding to the human kindness shown him by the Philippian Christians, Paul responds in kind. For this reason, Philippians has been called the most human letter of Paul. Most of this letter was written from prison. What might have disheartened anyone else has turned into an advantage by Paul.

Gospel: (Matthew 20:1-6) What is a parable and what does it do? "A parable is a concise story that is drawn from life, which when told to a particular audience, makes one point that challenges accepted views." All of these elements are present in the story Jesus tells. What is the kingdom of heaven like? That is the basic question one must ask and the entire passage today provides the answer. The central point of the parable is not on the wages paid to each group but on the owner. He is generous and it is God's generosity that is the basic issue.

St. Matthew: God Had a Different Job Description

September 21 — Feast of St. Matthew, Apostle and Evangelist

Matthew knew money. He was a tax collector, so numbers, taxes, accounts, and money were his daily business. In fact, among the Apostles, he was probably the one with the most financial experience.

So I can imagine Matthew thinking when Jesus called him:

“Finally! A job I am qualified for. Someone has to look after the money. Surely Jesus will make me the treasurer!” But Jesus had other plans. The money bag was given to Judas.

I wonder if Matthew ever looked at Judas and thought, “Seriously? Judas? Why him and not me? I actually know what I’m doing!”

Of course, the Gospel doesn't tell us that Matthew ever thought this. But I can certainly imagine it!

And perhaps there is a lesson here for us priests, parishioners—and especially anyone who has ever wondered why somebody else got the job, the responsibility, or the opportunity we thought should be ours. God's plan is often different from our job description.

Jesus didn't call Matthew simply because he was good with money. Jesus had something much bigger in mind.

Matthew would become an Apostle and the author of one of the four Gospels. The man who once kept track of money would now help people discover something far more valuable: the riches of God's mercy and the treasure of the Kingdom of Heaven.

Imagine if Jesus had said, “Matthew, you are really good with numbers. You can be our treasurer.” Maybe Matthew would have been very happy. But we might never have had the Gospel according to Matthew!

Sometimes we look at our lives and wonder, “Lord, why didn't You let me do this? Why did You give that opportunity to someone else?”

Matthew reminds us that God may have something much better in mind. Jesus sees possibilities in us that we don't always see in ourselves.

Matthew simply heard two words: “Follow me.” He got up, left his tax booth, and followed Jesus. He didn't have the whole plan. He didn't know he would become an Apostle. He certainly didn't know that Christians would still be reading his Gospel two thousand years later.

He just trusted Jesus.

And maybe that's the challenge for us today. We don't need to understand everything God is doing. We don't need to have the whole five-year plan—or even the five-day plan!

Sometimes we simply need to hear Jesus say, “Follow me,” and have enough faith to get up and go.

St. Matthew, pray for us, that we may trust God's plan—even when He gives the job we wanted to somebody else!

St. Jean de Brébeuf, St. Isaac Jogues & Companions: Our Canadian Martyrs

September 26 – Secondary Patrons of Canada

When we think about the history of Canada, we often think about explorers, pioneers, fur traders, and people travelling through forests and across rivers with very questionable maps. But among the earliest people to travel into the heart of what is now Canada were men carrying something even more important than a map: the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

On September 26, the Church in Canada celebrates St. Jean de Brébeuf, St. Isaac Jogues, priests, and their companions, martyrs—the Canadian Martyrs and secondary patrons of our country. They were proclaimed secondary patrons of Canada by Pope Pius XII in 1940, with St. Joseph remaining our principal patron.

There were eight martyrs: six Jesuits—Jean de Brébeuf, Isaac Jogues, Antoine Daniel, Gabriel Lalemant, Charles Garnier and Noël Chabanel—and two lay missionary companions, René Goupil and Jean de La Lande. They served among Indigenous peoples in the missions of New France during the 17th century.

They Didn't Come for an Easy Assignment

These priests did not exactly receive what we would call a comfortable parish assignment.

No rectory. No heated church. No parish office. No Wi-Fi. And definitely no coffee machine.

They lived among the people they served, learned their languages and customs, travelled through difficult country, endured hunger, cold, illness, isolation and danger. Their mission was not simply to build churches. They wanted to introduce people to Jesus Christ and to live the Gospel among them.

St. Jean de Brébeuf spent years among the Wendat (Huron), learning their language and culture. He even composed a grammar, dictionary and catechism in the Huron language. His famous Christmas hymn, traditionally associated with the Huron people, is remembered today as the Huron Carol.

St. Isaac Jogues experienced terrible suffering after being captured and tortured. Yet after escaping and returning to France, he eventually chose to return to the missions.

Imagine that conversation:

"Father, you escaped! You are safe!"

"Yes."

"Wonderful! So where are you going now?"

"Back."

That is missionary courage.

"I Go, and I Shall Not Return"

St. Isaac Jogues understood something that is difficult for us to understand today: following Christ does not always mean choosing the easiest road.

His famous words were:

"I go, and I shall not return."

He knew that returning to the mission might cost him his life. And it eventually did. Jogues and Jean de La Lande were killed in 1646. Other companions suffered martyrdom over the following years. St. Jean de Brébeuf and St. Gabriel Lalemant were killed in 1649, followed later that year by St. Charles Garnier and St. Noël Chabanel.

They were beatified in 1925 and canonized by Pope Pius XI in 1930.

What Do They Have to Say to Us Today?

We might think: “Father, that was 400 years ago. What does this have to do with me?”

Quite a lot.

The Canadian Martyrs remind us that faith is not something we are meant to keep safely inside the church building. Faith is something we carry into our homes, workplaces, schools, friendships and communities.

They also remind us that evangelization requires patience. They spent years learning how to communicate the Gospel across languages and cultures. They did not simply arrive, preach for ten minutes and ask everyone to fill out a registration form!

They had to listen, learn, build relationships and persevere.

And perhaps most importantly, they remind us that Jesus must remain at the centre of our lives. The Priests of Canada today continue to point to the martyrs' self-giving love as an important part of their spiritual legacy.

A Mission Still Unfinished

Canada has changed dramatically since the time of Brébeuf and Jogues. But the mission of sharing Christ has not ended.

Our country needs saints today just as much as it did in the 1600s.

We need parents who teach their children to pray.

We need young people who are not afraid to live their faith.

We need grandparents who pass on the faith they received.

We need priests and religious who serve generously.

And we need ordinary Catholics who are willing to say, “Lord, here I am. Send me.”

The Canadian Martyrs remind us that holiness is not about having an easy life. It is about giving our lives to Christ wherever He has placed us.

So on September 26, let us ask St. Jean de Brébeuf, St. Isaac Jogues and their companions to pray for Canada, for our families, for our Church, and for all of us.

And perhaps we can make one small missionary decision ourselves.

Invite someone to Mass.

Return to Confession.

Pray with your family.

Speak about your faith.

Forgive someone.

Help someone who is struggling.

You don't have to cross the wilderness of Canada like they did.

Sometimes the mission field is simply the person sitting beside us at the dinner table. St. Jean de Brébeuf, St. Isaac Jogues and companions, pray for us!

STARTING THE YEAR OFF WITH A BANG!

What an amazing turnout to the first Youth Group Night for 2026-27! A total of 51 youths attended Friday. Thank you for your patience during the Registration period.

The youths enjoyed learning the Church Clap Dance, playing boardgames, coming up with their name, and beginning the journey to figure out God's special plan for each of them.

For upcoming Youth Group events, an RSVP link will go out the week before via email, the parish bulletin, and social media. We ask that you RSVP by Wednesday prior to Youth Group Night to ensure that we have enough food and supplies for Holy Fire Fridays.

HOLY FIRE LOGO CONTEST

What an impressive feat for the youths to take a list of approximately 30 group names and whittle it down to one for the group: Holy Fire. Members will have the opportunity to design a logo for the group. One will be chosen to be our logo, while the runners up will become badges that members will collect throughout the year. Details to come.

GET INVOLVED!

With now over 60 members in the Holy Fire Youth Group, we will need more volunteers to ensure that the program runs smoothly and safely. If you would like to volunteer for the Youth Group, please contact the office at youth@francisdesaleshighriver.com
Please Note that Youth Ministry volunteers will need to complete a vulnerable sector police check.
